Part I, Line 2 - Grantmakers Explanation For Grants Outside USPART I, LINE 2

The Breast Cancer Relief Foundation monitors overseas donations by conducting field visits to: a) meet with hospital, government, or consignee officials connected with our medical relief donations; b) examine documents related to our donated medicines and products; and c) interview a select number of patients that have benefited from our donations.

Additional Supplemental InformationPART II, LINE 3

TBCRF records and values pharmaceutical donations at the time each donation is received from corporations and non-profit organizations. The valuation methodology employed by TBCRF to determine the fair market value for each donation is a conservative approach whereby the wholesale acquisition cost for each product is obtained from published price schedules. When the wholesale acquisition cost is not available, other estimated values will be consulted and a reduction will be applied. Non-pharmaceutical donations (e.g., medical supplies, mammography units, diagnostic equipment) will be valued at the fair market value provided by the donor organization or corporation.

From 990 Page 2 Part III Line 4a - Program Services

The Breast Cancer Relief Foundation (TBCRF) has a mission to serve the unmet needs of women with breast cancer in the United States and around the world through the support and promotion of education and awareness, prevention and early detection, medical assistance and relief, and innovative breast cancer research. We are committed to meeting the immediate needs of individuals who might otherwise go without treatment and working toward a world free of this terrible disease.

Our Mammogram Access Program seeks to help at-risk women gain access to mammography testing. We believe that every American woman should have access to a mammogram, and we are supporting leading initiatives across the United States to help provide this needed tool. TBCRF has collaborated with programs at many institutes throughout the country helping to provide access to individuals who may not otherwise have been able to receive a mammogram. This very significant program has assisted many needy women not only with receiving mammograms and in some case early diagnosis of breast cancer but also with engaging them in a more consistent relationship with a health care provider and/or advocate who can help them in addressing all of their healthcare needs.

We believe strongly that lack of insurance, inadequate coverage, or financial hardship should never prevent a woman from receiving the breast cancer treatment that she desperately needs. TBCRF continues to support poor patients in the United States and the developing world who require assistance in order to receive their required treatments. Through our Patient Relief Program, we provide financial assistance to underserved breast cancer patients across the United States through grant funding to cancer treatment institutions, hospitals, and clinics. The grant funding is administered by each institution's social services office with these funds being designated exclusively for breast cancer patients to alleviate the obstacles that might otherwise prevent a patient from receiving treatment. The need for this program is so critical because we are providing support to patients for items that are often overlooked, such as support for transportation, lodging, and insurance co-pays supplemental items that frequently push patients into a financial situation that prevents their ability to continue treatment. This type of assistance, while clearly financial in nature, has repeatedly shown itself to be of far greater value to the patient than simply the monetary amount.

Our mission to serve the unmet needs of women with breast cancer is a global one, so in addition to assisting women in the United States, we also actively work to meet the needs of impoverished women in the developing world, where there is urgent need for medicines to treat breast cancer and its related side-effects and illnesses such as nausea, infection, and depression. TBCRF's Global Medical Assistance Program is focused in some of the poorest countries of Latin America Nicaragua, Honduras, Guatemala, El Salvador, Paraguay, and the Dominican Republic though we are now also providing assistance in the Philippines and Ghana. We seek to expand this program to additional countries in the developing world in order to help women receive the medicines that they require to fight and win their battle with breast cancer. TBCRF is committed to providing the most complete support possible for the patients we assist through access to high quality breast cancer therapies, antiemetics, antibiotics, and depression resources and therapies to address their needs. We are seeking to offer more early detection capabilities to the developing world by providing mammography units to diagnostic clinics that reach underserved and/or rural patients. By maintaining close communication with our overseas hospital, government, and foundation partners, we are able to assess accurately the medical needs of the impoverished patients in these countries, which are staggering. Through this program we have helped hundreds of thousands of vulnerable patients, not only with breast cancer, but also with other serious illnesses such as diabetes, HIV/AIDS, mental health illnesses, hemophilia, and cardiovascular disease. Our goal is to make this program sustainable and have a lasting effect on this region's poor who are in critical need of our help.

The Breast Cancer Relief Foundation also has an important history of supporting breast cancer research. Each year, our Breast Cancer Research Program awards specialized grant funding to pioneering researchers in their endeavors to investigate and develop new and alternative treatment options for women with breast cancer. This seed funding allows cutting-edge ideas to be pursued with the hope of making the ultimate breakthrough. We are committed to supporting research so that a cure for breast cancer will one day become a reality. So, in addition to TBCRF's strong focus on meeting the immediate needs of individuals who might otherwise go without treatment, we feel strongly about continuing to support innovative cancer research in the United States in order to collaborate in the work toward a world free of this terrible disease.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4b - Program Services

TBCRF is committed to providing accurate and informative educational resources to those that seek a better understanding of breast cancer and its causes, symptoms, early detection, and treatment. We believe that women can empower themselves through knowledge to reduce their chances of getting breast cancer by learning more about avoiding specific risks. For this reason, we make available our educational resources to millions of American homes with knowledge and action, together we can beat breast cancer. TBCRF also makes available more in-depth resources for individuals in their battle against cancer. These publications and resources are available only on an individual basis and quantities are limited. The website for our organization, <http://breastcancerrelief.org>, has useful information and describes the publications and resources that are available to the public upon request.

Breast cancer awareness, including the need for early detection and treatment, is being taken very seriously by individual Americans and as a result survival rates are increasing. TBCRF is determined to keep the public informed and aware of the most up-to-date information concerning breast cancer prevention and detection as this information can empower individuals in the fight against breast cancer and ultimately save lives.
